Tim Mainka grew up in Les Paul's hometown, Waukesha, Wisconsin, USA, in a household of musically active brothers. Hearing his brothers play all kinds of rock on the drums, Tim, at the age of ten, said to himself, "I can do that too. I can be a rock star." He quickly started to teach himself Mötley Crüe and Guns 'N Roses songs. At age twelve, he picked up guitar and wrote his first power chord rock song. By age thirteen, he took up bass which became his forte in numerous bands, including the progressive instrumental rock trio, "Torque", in which he could show off his Billy Sheehan, Geddy Lee, Jaco Pastorius, Cliff Burton, Les Claypool inspired chops. Self-taught, Tim enthusiastically explored these instruments with confidence as he embarked upon his lifelong musical destiny.

After winning in numerous high school talent shows and "Battle of the Bands" during his senior year, Mukwonago High, voted him voted him "Most Likely To Become A Rock Star." With his unlimited creativity and innovation, Tim knew he could not be content as a music teacher in the public school system. As a free bird, Tim needed freedom to fly dreams high. After sharing his musical knowledge and techniques for years, as a private instructor...now is the time to unleash Sonic Freedom™
